HUNGARIAN NEWSPAPER SAYS YUGOSLAV
MILITARY PRISONS AND PENALTY POSTS HOLD 120,000

At present, more than 20,000 officers, noncommissioned officers, and soldiers are being held in Yugoslavia's military prisons, and more than 100,000 soldiers have been assigned to penalty units. In Belgrade, 260 officers and 300 noncommissioned officers were arrested in one night. At Sarajevo, 40 officers were arrested. Many officers and noncommissioned officers at the new officers' quarters were taken into custody for listening to Radio Moscow.

Recently, officers have been required to sign "loyalty" statements. When asked if he would shoot a Soviet soldier, Colonel Krstasich replied he would rather shoot his commanding officer or commit suicide. For his reply, the officer was immediately arrested.
